2:00PM – 5:00PMA University Round-Table: Accelerating Global Clean Tech Innovation & Deployment

Venue: Clinton School Public Service

Description

Institutions of higher education are uniquely positioned to accelerate clean tech innovation and deployment, bringing together diverse fields to foster innovation around the most important challenges for sustainability. Universities play a crucial role convening professors, scientists, researchers, students, practitioners, and industry leaders who develop and deploy new technologies around the world. This roundtable discussion will bring together academic leaders engaged in sustainable development and new technologies. Academic and industry leaders will share their initiatives as part of a broader strategy that reflects the goals of the new Global Solutions Institute. We hope this discussion will launch an new initiative involving Fulbright Scholar Alumni globally to become more involved in technology deployment.

Host

Skip Rutherford, Dean, University of Arkansas Clinton School of Public Service

Moderator

Kelly Elizabeth Behrend, currently Head of Impact Strategy at Speakable, and a participant in the inaugural Club de Madrid - P80 event in Little Rock in 2012 and served as a plenary speaker at the Club de Madrid conference in Brisbane in 2014.

2:00PM – 3:30PM, Session 1Sustainability, Innovation, and Technology Deployment in Higher Education

This panel of sustainability leaders in higher education will explore how universities are stimulating innovation in the field of clean technology research, applications, and deployment globally.
